

BaseballSteroids.com Announces Sale Of Domain Name

Company Announces Unique Opportunity for Baseball Fans, Memorabilia Dealers, Collectors, Historians, all Investors and Entrepreneurs

For Immediate Release

NEW YORK/EWORLDWIRE/March 25, 2005 --- With their prices continually growing, the public may be presented with their last opportunity at acquiring an extremely valuable domain name. This unique opportunity is available for millions of baseball fans, collectors, dealers of sports memorabilia, historians, all investors and entrepreneurs. The domain name, www.baseballsteroids.com, is currently for sale on the popular auction Web site, eBay. In an interesting twist, the auction has Jose Canseco's endorsement. The auction's winner will also receive a signed copy - made out to www.baseballsteroids.com - of Canseco's new book, "Juiced: Wild Times, Rampant 'Roids, Smash Hits and How Baseball Got Big."

Never before in the history of the United States has such a distinctly American institution suffered such a bruising of its reputation. Since the scandal was blown apart, tens of thousands of articles and columns have been written about this dubious event.

The scandal has rumbled from the ballparks all the way up to Capitol Hill. At Congressional hearings, American heroes have seen their legendary status stripped away. Men, who were once considered role models and heroes, have been reduced to tears and reviled by the millions that once looked up to them. Instead of being remembered for their greatness, these defrocked heroes are now being mentioned in the same breath as the tarnished reputations of "Shoeless" Joe Jackson and the 1919 Chicago "Black Sox" scandal, and Pete Rose and gambling.

Outraged fans have requested for the records of steroid abusers to be erased. Many are speculating that the sport may never be able to recover from the damage done by the rampant abuse of one illegal and harmful substance.

"This is part of sports history. It is the biggest sports scandal in American history. The auction's winner will truly own a piece of history," Leon Hayblum, owner of www.baseballsteroids.com said.

The new owner would also have complete ownership of every "baseballsteroids" domain extension, such as .net, .org and others. They will have full control of the domain names forever. With the strength of the .com names, owning such a valuable asset will be extremely beneficial. This is truly a once in a lifetime opportunity. The new owner will be providing a priceless link to the past for future generations.

Potential bidders can go directly to eBay to view the auction or visit www.baseballsteroids.com to view the link.
