

Jobberz.com Solves The Income Gap

Identifying supplemental income helps families offset rising costs.

For Immediate Release

STERLING HEIGHTS, Mich./EWORLDWIRE/Aug. 30, 2006 --- The attraction of additional side job work to supplement regular income has become a valuable additional income stream as tightening budgets are compounded by inflation.

Since launching earlier this year, Jobberz.com Founder Shawn Hanaee has found the positive reception users have shared with him thrilling to encounter. Would-be workers have been able to locate suitable work that fits into their schedules and offers them a chance to meet rising costs by offering their skills through Jobberz.

After a simple signup process is complete, jobbers submit their details online to make them available to for contact by the public.

"I found the idea of creating a centralized location for meeting up with potential employers intriguing. With little start-up capital and conservative plans, I've managed to reach across the U.S. with the site and its opportunities - with tremendous results," said Hanaee.

Despite a significant number of employment sites, none offer the precision skill-sets of Jobberz workers to supplement regular employment. Users can upload additional photos to accompany the posting to demonstrate the quality of the work they deliver; users can view sample work online before they hire or contact anyone.

Those looking for additional side work or those looking for workers are invited to visit www.jobberz.com. Founder Shawn Hanaee is available for interviews at 586.362.3166.
