

Rock gardens Get A New Twist With Innovative Ideas From Bestselling Author Lin Wellford.

Painted Garden Art Anyone Can Do is the latest release from ArtStone Pres: When homeowners struggle to make outdoor spaces look good, artist Lin Wellford comes to the rescue with attractive garden art projects that add tons of visual interest without cost

For Immediate Release

GREEN FOREST, Ark./EWORLDWIRE/March 12, 2007 --- Anyone can turn their outdoor areas into a work of art with the help of Lin Wellford's newest book. This seasoned author is known as "the mother of modern rock painting," for her series of books that introduced techniques for transforming rocks. Now she turns her attention to manufactured stone and pre-cast landscaping elements, turning them into an array of fanciful and realistic garden art objects that will add visual interest to any yard or garden.

Readers will be entranced by her "Faux Fish Pond" and larger than life basking iguana. Colorful petaled pathways and butterfly stepping stones are both fun and easy, as are the "Garden Gator" and "Fishy Flower Beds".

Ten chapters in all, both manufactured materials and natural rocks are used to create durable garden art designed to turn any yard into a work of art. Best of all, no art experience is needed. Full size patterns and complete instructions make this an art perfect for beginners.

Painted Garden Art Anyone Can Do is scheduled to be released in May and is the second title from ArtStone Press, following Rock Painting Fun for Everyone! which has gone back to press for a third time in less than a year. Learn more at '<http://www.linwellford.com>'
