

SeeMore's Playhouse Wins Two Emmy Awards

SeeMore's Playhouse Wins Emmy Awards Both for Outstanding Children's Program and Outstanding Informational/Instructional Program

For Immediate Release

STAMFORD, Conn./EWorldWire/May 18, 2007 --- SeeMore's Playhouse was recognized with two Emmy awards from the National Television Academy Boston/New England Chapter for Outstanding Children's Program and Outstanding Informational/Instructional Program. Award winners were announced at the 2007 Boston/New England National Television Academy Emmy Awards ceremony on Saturday, May 12 in Boston, Massachusetts. This year's awards' competition received more than 700 entries from more than 40 networks in the region. Not since 2001 has the Academy seen this number of entries, with several networks and shows receiving multiple awards for outstanding programming throughout the year.

"We are thrilled to have won these two prestigious awards and to be honored alongside this year's best television programming. We're more committed than ever to educate children and parents about children's safety through the lessons taught by SeeMore and his friends," said Safety4Kids President Tom Blair.

SeeMore's Playhouse is the first-of-its-kind television series designed to entertain pre-school children while teaching them the vital basics of safety and healthy living. Starring "SeeMore, The Safety Seal" and featuring puppets and animation, the show has also garnered the International Aurora Awards' "Gold Award for Children/Youth" for outstanding production in a children's series. SeeMore's Playhouse is presented by King Features Syndicate and Safety4Kids.

The second season of SeeMore's Playhouse makes its debut this September just in time for back to school. Exciting additions to Season Two include partnerships with national organizations such as the American Red Cross and Major League Soccer. SeeMore is also welcoming some of Hollywood's hottest stars including Kevin Bacon, Wendie Malick and Heather Graham who visit the Playhouse to tell jokes and share a laugh.

SeeMore's Playhouse stars "SeeMore, The Safety Seal" and his friends, Basil Wombat, Shades The Wolf, Lottie Lamb, Penny Pup and Harry Hippo, who team up to make safety fun.
