

Sun West Mortgage: Reverse Mortgages Secure Seniors' Independence

For Immediate Release

CERRITOS, Calif./EWorldWire/June 27, 2008 --- Maintaining independence is a goal for many seniors. Unfortunately, rocky market conditions and increasing prices of goods and services make it difficult for the nation's elderly to meet their financial obligations. A common solution for senior homeowners in this situation is to sell their home, or seek assistance from their children. A reverse mortgage may be an alternative to these options, because it allows elderly homeowners to maintain both their financial independence and their home.

A reverse mortgage allows seniors to turn the equity in their home into cash that can be spent on anything they choose. This loan is available to homeowners 62 and older who occupy their home as their primary residence. The amount of money a senior will get depends on their age, home value and the interest rates at the time. They may receive this money as monthly payments, a line of credit, an upfront lump sum, or any combination of the three.

Valerie Everly, a Southern California resident whose mother has a reverse mortgage, says, "It's a big load off of me. It lets my mind rest because she's getting her medicine on time, her meals on time, everything she needs when I can't be there." Because of her reverse mortgage, Valerie's mother won't have to live in a retirement or nursing home. "We thought we would have to sell it [the house] to get the care she needs," Everly recalls. "When we found out we didn't, that meant everything."

A government insured reverse mortgage is a safe means to financial security for many senior homeowners.

Interested seniors should talk to an experienced lender to learn more about the federally insured reverse mortgage program. Sun West Mortgage has over 27 years of experience in the mortgage banking industry, with an ongoing commitment to educate and enrich the lives of seniors.
