

California-based Fire Stop Private Wildfire Prevention And Suppression Company, Expands Service To San Diego County

For Immediate Release

RAMONA, Calif./EWorldWire/Oct. 14, 2008 --- "Fire preparation starts well in advance of fire season," explains Chris Dusa, an executive with Fire Stop.

Dusa affirms San Diego residents know the dangers of wildfires all too well. The devastating wildfires of 2003 and 2007 are fresh on everyone's mind and leave many to seek help to protect their property and homes. Fire officials agree that the single most effective way for residents to protect their property is by the creation of defensible space around buildings. "We're launching a Southern California-based effort to put our resources in the areas that are most prone to predictable fire. We encourage property owners to consider some form of defensible space and structure protection plans if you live in a fire prone area," says Dusa.

Fire Stop is an industry leading provider of fire prevention and suppression services which also trains and re-certifies new and existing wildland firefighters.

In business for 19 years, the company has provided prevention and wildfire suppression services in 30 states and in Canada. Fire Stop has addressed fire suppression, structure protection, prescribed burns and other fuels reduction services to the USFS, state governments, Fire Safe Councils, homeowner associations, and private land owners.

Fire Stop has chosen Ramona for its base of operations due to its location at the center of the county's most fire-prone areas. For more information contact 1-877-347-3312 or log on to '<http://www.fire-stop.com>'.
